

Dr. Bob McCulloch became Chair of the Board of CBIE in November 2007 for a two-year term.

As president and CEO of SIAST – the Saskatchewan Institute of Applied Science and Technology, Dr. McCulloch leads the province’s primary provider of skills and technical training.

Before joining SIAST in 2002, Dr. McCulloch served in various academic and executive capacities at the University of Regina, providing him with experience in both the “business” side of education, as well as in front-line delivery.

A native of Rosetown, Saskatchewan, Dr. McCulloch pursued graduate studies at the University of Washington and the University of Saskatchewan. He received his doctorate from the University of Saskatchewan, where he had also studied as an undergraduate. An enthusiastic teacher and long-time volunteer, he has received numerous honours for academic excellence and public service.

Dr. McCulloch has been an active contributor in education and health fields both nationally and provincially, having served on the management boards of such organizations as the Saskatchewan Health Services Utilization and Research Commission and the Association of Canadian Community Colleges.

SIAST delivers more than 170 programs through a province-wide network of four campuses, distance education and online learning. The organization is recognized nationally and internationally for its expertise in developing and delivering career-oriented training, with programming that touches every sector of the economy. Almost 12,000 students are registered in SIAST programs; additionally, the organization draws approximately 27,000 individual course registrations.
